

Tübingen DocDays online 2026

Dear PhD students, dear Master students interested in pursuing a PhD,

From February 23rd to 26th, the University of Tübingen holds its annual online DocDays. This event is open to students from all CIVIS universities and many of the workshops are offered in English. If you are interested in doing a doctorate or are already doing a doctorate at your home University, we have many interesting short workshops for you which can support you during the doctoral phase.

Here are some of the topics covered:

- How can I manage my research and my data efficiently and professionally?
- How can I develop my research into a practical appliance and build my own startup?
- How can I make my teaching more professional?
- Which strategies can help make writing my dissertation easier?
- What requirements do the different Faculties at the University of Tübingen have for doctoral students?
- How does the German science system work? What career paths are there?
- What funding options are there in Germany after I have completed my doctorate?

You can attend as many workshops as you like. Everything is free of charge and offered online.

Registration is required for each workshop in order to receive the access link.
